JITNEY OPERATOR HELD FOR STEALING AN AUTO

Held for trial by the district court in the charge of automobile stealing, H. A. Hitchcock of West Tulsa, was committed to jail at the close of his preliminary hearing before Judge S. C. Casey, the court holding from the testimony that the defendant probably stole an automobile from J. W. Shipman of Jopka on July 1.

Testimony given by Ezerel Laufflin of Red Fork, went to show that he witnessed the theft of the car from the lot of Red Fork hill on July 1, when the latter related to Laufflin that he had an automobile in a brush patch, nearby. Hitchcock gave as his reason for the position of the car as far off the road, that the steering gear had become out of order and the car had run into the brush before Hitchcock succeeded in stopping it.

Laufflin returned to the place where the car had been some days later to find one door and the body of the car, along with several pairs of wheels, hidden in the brush. In the presence of the jury, the wheels were addressed to Shipman, and acting on this information, Laufflin and Shipman of the actions of Hitchcock.

Hitchcock was later arrested in possession of a West Tulsa jitney, the chassis of which has been identified as that of the car stolen from Shipman. The defendant's bond for appearance before the district court was set by the court at $2,000, which amount for the defendant said probably could be made.

Permanent ranks of general in the regular army for General Pershing and General March and permanent ranks of admiral in the navy for Rear Admiral Sims and Admiral Benson, have been asked of congress by President Wilson, according to a report from Washington. There have been only four generals in America's history. Washington, Grant, Sherman and Sheridan were so honored. Three men were admirals: David H. Farragut, David Porter and George Dewey. George Washington was the first American general and the last until the civil war. Ulysses S. Grant, the next to attain the rank, became a general in 1866. When Grant became president in 1869 the rank of general was conferred upon William Tecumseh Sherman, who held it until his retirement in 1884. In May, 1888, the rank was revived for Philip H. Sheridan. Pershing, while still holding the rank of major general, became temporarily a general in October, 1917. Major-General March having received the same temporary rank the preceding May. In the navy the temporary rank of admiral is held by Rear Admiral while serving as chief of naval operations or in command of fleets. George Dewey was the last to hold the title permanently in the navy. Before him there had been only two: David H. Farragut and David Porter.

TULSA BANKERS AFTER RESERVE BANK BRANCH

Prominent Business Men go to Kansas City to Present Claims for Location in Magic City.

Tulsa's bid for a branch of the Tenth Federal Reserve bank will be made in Kansas City Thursday before the directors of the Tenth district.

Hearing the city's brief, a large number of Tulsa bankers left for Kansas City Thursday to appear before the board with their arguments as to why the city is the logical home of a subfederal bank. The delegation has facts and figures to show just how large a proportion of the resources of the Tenth district bank lie within a scope of territory which can best be served by locating the branch here. Those who are familiar with these matters declare that Tulsa's claim and position cannot be denied by other cities which will put forward their claim for the subbank.

Among those who left last night for Kansas City are E. W. Sinclair, E. W. Jacob, Jake Kanton, W. A. Brownlee, Harry H. Rogers, J. M. Woodford, W. A. Brown, G. N. Wright, Grant R. McMillan, A. J. Brashaw, J. H. McHenry, W. L. Lewis, Joe Olson, Alvin S. New, J. M. Berry, Mark E. Carr, N. B. Graham and Eugene Lorton.

In addition to these Tulsa delegates, delegations from Muskogee, McAlester, Okmulgee, Sapulpa, Vinita and Bartlesville, who hope to see the branch located in Tulsa, are also in Kansas City.

WOMAN ASKS $10,000 FOR AUTO ACCIDENT

Damages of $10,000 for personal injuries received in an automobile collision, were asked in district court Tuesday by Selva J. Higdon against Hattie Suppes and C. E. Suppes, the plaintiff claiming she was thrown from the automobile which her husband was driving east of the city on May 31, and permanently injured.

The plaintiff says in her petition that Hattie Suppes, driving his automobile at a high rate of speed, ran into the automobile occupied by the plaintiff at the intersection of the Tulsa-Hitch and Tulsa-Frisken Avenues, demolishing the car owned by the plaintiff and causing her great physical suffering as a result of the collision.

Crime Decreases in Tulsa With National Prohibition

National prohibition is beginning to have an effect on the amount of business done by the police and federal officers, and as the price of whiskey's sale has fallen crime has fallen, according to officials.

"Prohibition does seem to be paying off," James H. Williams, Tulsa district attorney, said yesterday. "Since July 1 I haven't heard of a single case for bootlegging. And the best part of it is that other crimes seem to have disappeared along with whiskey. While there have been some cases of tax evasion since national prohibition went into effect and murders have become equally scarce."

Bootleggers are still on the job, however, although their work is not as much in evidence as it was when it was easy to get liquor in two territory and ship out to Oklahoma. Now the bootlegging has to take a risk when he goes the whole way and a still greater risk when he brings it into the state. The increased cost of production and transportation has had its effect on bootlegging just the same as on every other opportunity and the poor customer is the one who pays the added burden. Whiskey is being quoted by the most reliable bootleggers at anywhere from $12 to $14 a quart although just a few months ago it might have been as low as $8.

Still Are Drinking.

Last week high was well above $20 and low was down near $18, but this week there seems to be a slump in the market and stock has dropped to $20 high and $12 low.

Bootleggers are still drinking, and "People are still bootlegging," John J. Moran, Tulsa district attorney, said. "Bootleggers will be bootleggers as long as they live and nobody can make them give up their profession, but I believe that inside of a year there will be little business for them. Of course the supply will still be on hand but the demand will be less as the public gets used to doing without booze. They'll quit taking whisky and use this homebrew and here bootlegging that can make a man crazy with a little doctoring up."

Some Use Dope.

As the city fell the usual line of "tin heads" continues to come in as evidence that the July 1 stock took away in the cellar has not yet been exhausted, although some of the regular patrons of the place seem to be doing their best to dispose of the nation's supply in no time. With the absence of booze, some are taking to opium and morphine for inspiration and stimulation. They say a few pairs of the Venetian blinders, being in locked with dope in place of their favorite drink, is better than cocaine or any other.

The death of 13 South a team shot who died at the police station four weeks ago as the result of too much morphine when they were taken to the hospital, was a case of dope in the hands of a bootlegger. The police are now looking for a man who was seen leaving the police station two or three times a week and give up drinking when the supply runs out and take to dope.

After Railroad Crossing.

A street crossing at the intersection of Third street and the M. & T. tracks was asked for in a petition submitted to the board of commissioners yesterday by practically all of the residents in that vicinity. The petition also asked for the placing of street lights at the crossing and at Cowan street crossing. East Third street is now closed because of the refusal of the railroad administration to build a crossing, although the city has agreed to carry out its part of the work in making fills and other improvements. At present all traffic is forced to go two blocks south in order to cross the tracks.
